

Restaurants reach out with pick-up, to go options

Our Newport Beach restaurants are reaching out to the community by providing safe and healthy alternatives to dining in.

By continuing to support our local establishments, we hopefully can help keep their doors open, as they rely on pick-up and take-out options to survive during the coronavirus pandemic.

Here are some eateries offering their services. Please note this is not an exhaustive list, but a positive beginning to obtaining meals from these eateries.

Editor's Note: While the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) and the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) have said there is no evidence to suggest the coronavirus can be spread through food or food packaging, COVID-19 is believed to be able to survive on plastic and hard surfaces up to three days, or for up to 24 hours on cardboard. To be safe, it is recommended to discard any packaging the take-out order comes in and transfer it into another dish. Opt to not receive utensils in a delivery bag, and instead use your own clean forks and knives at home. Also, wash your hands with soap and water before and after handling the food, and avoid touching your face, nose and mouth with your hands. All deliveries should be left on the doorstep to accommodate social distancing.
